Stocks soar on multitrillion-dollar bailouts

LONDON—STOCK MARKETS IN EUROPE and Asia surged for a second straight day on Tuesday after Wall Street rallied from its recent weak start on optimism about stimulus by the United States and major economic powers to shore up the battered international financial system.

Following a European central-bank plan to bail out banks, the US Treasury was expected to unveil on Tuesday its plan to pump $200 billion into American banks, with about half of the amount going to the top nine financial institutions to get them lending to each other again.

Gathering storm clouds, however, cast a pall over the big spike in the stock markets, with two of Europe's biggest economies—France and Germany—said to be on the brink of recession.

SC: Moro land deal illegal

'Whimsical, capricious, oppressive'

By Norman Bordadora

THE MEMORANDUM OF agreement on ancestral domain (MOA-AD) between the government and a Moro separatist rebel group is illegal and unconstitutional, and the process that led to its crafting was "whimsical, capricious, oppressive, arbitrary and despotic," the Supreme Court declared yesterday.

Writing 6-7 on the petition of officials of North Cotabato, Elguin City and Zamboanga City, the high court stopped Presidential Adviser on the Peace Process Hermenegildo Esguerra and the government panel from signing and executing the agreement that laid the foundation for the creation of an expanded Bangsamoro homeland in Mindanao.

It described the agreement as "contrary to law and the Constitution," and called for public consultations in accordance with the right to information.

MILF to take case to UN, Islamic states

THE MORO ISLAMIC LIBERATION FRONT (MILF) is preparing to take the ancestral memorandum of agreement on ancestral domain (MOA-AD) to the international arena.

MILF chief negotiator Mahabugh told said the separatist group would be willing to renegotiate "only on the basis" of the agreement "and with the presence of representatives of the international community."

"We will bring this before the international community, like the Organization of the Islamic Conference (OIC) and the United Nations. We need an international guarantee that if we return to the negotiating table, the government will be true to its word," Mahabugh said.

"There is no hope of addressing this

Former Rep. Michael Manresa, a member of the MILF negotiating panel, said the government should take "a singular stand" on the matter so that the peace talks could proceed.

Petron disputes tax debt

Oil refiner questions P623-M assessment by Customs, will go to court

By Miguel L. H.

OIL REFINER PETRON CORP. HAS REFUTED the Bureau of Customs' claim it owes the government P623.6 million in additional customs duties and taxes and inclusive of a two-time penalty for revenue loss.

In a regulatory filing, Petron corporeo necessary. Luis Mayuga said the firm was questioning the BOC's final audit findings which showed the company owed P623.6 million for the period July 26, 2004, to June 26, 2007.

Mayuga said the oil refiner would either ask the Bureau to reconsider its findings.

"Petron was the first to be audited by the BOC, and its reconsideration, but its reconsideration, if the request is denied or it is not acted upon, Petron will exercise the matter to the Courts of Tax Appeals," he said.

According to the BOC, Petron owed additional duties and value-added taxes since the oil firm used these revenues as the basis for computing the duties and value of its imported products, and that the invoice which would have shown the transaction value or actual price paid for the goods.

The firm countered that a direct receipt was a more accurate measure of product volume, compared to its invoice.

"By final nature, petroleum products are volatile and their volume is greatly influenced by temperature or changes in weather conditions while it remains in storage," Petron said.

The BOC also accused Petron of not paying taxes on the export, but Petron said it was not.

In its defense, Petron said the equity payments should not be included in the value of the imported fuel oil, but are shipped with diesel as the two figures were totally unrelated to each other.

"The equities are computed at the agreed upon percentage of the net sales value of the finished blended products, manufactured and sold by Petron. The computation has no bearing at all on the tax-volume it is greatly influenced by temperature or changes in weather conditions while it remains in storage," Petron said.

volume, as two-thirds of it is used in the production of refined petroleum products," Petron said.

"There is no basis for imposing on Petron a 200 percent additional tax," Petron said. "It was not right to file the import entries since the use of these stocks was allowed by the BOC, not only for Petron but for the other oil companies."

Former NHA official found guilty of graft

By Margaret C. Gotic

IT TOOK 21 YEARS, BUT THE SANDAGAN has found a proper executioner of the National Housing Authority (NHA) guilty of graft for authorizing the payment of illegal commissions to a supposed landlord.

In 1987, it ruling, the original owner of the 10-story apartment house, former NHA official, Jose Raposo, a former chairman of NHA's Commercial and Industrial Finance Department (COFI) in a suit to litigate the suit.

The court said Raposo had authorized the payment of P750,000 in illegal commissions to a supposed landlord and that he had also paid a large part of the amount in 1987.

The Sandiganbayan directed Raposo to pay the government P750,000—the amount authorized for the payment of the commissions.

Raposo's co-accused, former COFI chief Francisco Antonio, had been cleared of any liability in 2002 for lack of evidence, while private defendant Cecilia Palencia was acquitted on May 9, 2006.

Endorsed application
The original owner's request for the Sandiganbayan endorsed Raposo's application to litigate the purchase of a 5,000-square-meter commercial property along C-3 Road in Calabarzon City in 1987.

The court ruled that the latter, Antonio, was a former NHA official who had authorized the payment of P750,000 in illegal commissions to a supposed landlord and that he had also paid a large part of the amount in 1987.

The court said Raposo had authorized the payment of P750,000 in illegal commissions to a supposed landlord and that he had also paid a large part of the amount in 1987.

The following year Raposo purchased a Philippine National Bank company's stock in the P150,000 which was then used to Raposo's personal account at the Bank Savings Bank, leading to his conviction for graft.

Japan grants RP P300M for disaster control

By Cynthia D. Balana

JAPAN HAS EXTENDED A GRANT OF P300 million to fund disaster mitigation and education projects in the Philippines.

Foreign Secretary Alberto Fernandez signed and exchanged notes on Monday on the two projects: the improvement of flood forecasting and disaster response (PPW) in the Philippines and Japan river basin and the Japanese Grant Aid for Human Resource Development in Technology (JHRD).

The signing and exchanging of notes officially marked the appropriation of 250 million yen (P150 million pesos) for the second phase of the project on the improvement of PPW and an additional 500 million yen (P300 million pesos) to cover the second batch of JHRD for studies for students from 2009-2014.

The improvement of PPW in the Philippines and Japan river basin is a project funded by the government of Japan through its Official Development Assistance (ODA). Already in its second phase, the project aims to reduce the frequency of existing PPW that have been malfunctioning due to its damage or deterioration, and includes the construction of various systems, radio networks and other facilities.

Improved data collection
According to officials, the project will improve data collection and the dissemination of data and information for disaster control. It will also facilitate the development of hazard maps that will contribute to the safety and self-sufficiency of people and property.

The JHRD, a scholarship project initiated by Japan through its ODA has been implemented in 11 countries including the Philippines between 2002 and 2007. Japan has allocated approximately two billion yen (P200 million) for the project.

Every year since the JHRD project was implemented, 25 Filipino scholars go to Japan to pursue a two-year master's degree in selected fields like economics, information technology, public administration, industrial development and business administration to make local contributions.

The project aims to enhance the activities of the Philippine local government officials in the country's overall economic development.

To date, the Philippines has a total of 134 JHRD scholars, including the latest batch of 23 scholars starting academic year 2008-2009.

pinoy consulate in Jeddah to represent Raposo before the court of Jeddah, the governor of Jeddah and the attorney of interest.

Two letters
President Ma's letter to King Abdullah II dated Dec. 6, 2007, and July 7, 2008, seeking clemency for Raposo and his sentence in executing the victim's family to accept blood money and forgive him.

The victim's family, however, refused to forgive Raposo but insisted on their right to "justice" at the capital court.

Under Saudi Law, the crime of murder results in a public and private fatwa.

While the King of Saudi Arabia can forgive the public aspect of the case, he cannot extend clemency if the victim's family insists on their right of justice.

The OHA has informed Raposo's relatives of his fate and is coordinating with the Department of Labor and Employment to assist the family.

More doomed OPHs
In another case, the relatives of three OPHs whose death sentences by beheading have been affirmed by a Saudi court, stated proper legal steps to save them.

The families appealed to the government to save the lives of Ibrahim Balanda and Ebrahim Gonzalez and Eduardo Arellano.

The case could be executed any time this month, the Gonzalez's sister, Maria, said.

The Gonzalez and Arellano were charged with murdering Ramon Lumbang, Jerry Bernal and Dante Rivers in Jeddah in 2006. They said they were innocent and admitting the crime.

The court also sentenced four other OPHs—Eliel Bernal, Joel Bernal, Oscar Bernal and Victor Bernal—to 10 years in prison and 1,000 lashes each to atone for the crime.

The seven men, including the three victims, are natives of Pangasinan.

"We officials from the Philippine embassy there are helping them. No lawyer from our government was present when the second verdict was handed down," said Bernal in Pangasinan.

She said Gov. Edcel Maza had asked the OHA to send a representative to a meeting with the court's decision in Pangasinan on Oct. 13, with a report from the OHA's Office, Deputy Chief of Mission.

A SOLIDARITY STATEMENT WITH THE FILIPINO PEOPLE ON REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH BILL NO. 5043

We, the members of Couples for Christ Foundation for Family and Life in Europe (CFC-PFL Europe) are very distressed about the contents of the Reproductive Health Bill currently being discussed by the Congress of the Philippines. Many of us in CFC-PFL Europe were born and raised in the Philippines, and still consider it our homeland. Some of us are Europeans who have developed an emotional bond with the Philippines, due to the love and regard which our Filipino brethren rightly have for their motherland.

In unity with our physical and spiritual brethren in the Philippines, we, CFC-PFL Europe want to express our objection that Reproductive Health Bill No. 3043 is bad for the Philippines and bad for Filipinos. Although many of the provisions mentioned in the bill may sound harmless or even praiseworthy on the surface, we know (based on the experience of formerly pro-life countries in Europe) that these same points of law will be the wedge used by anti-life forces to drive a crack, and eventually an irreparable breach, in the rights which are currently enshrined in the Constitution of the Philippines. These rights are the equal protection of the life of the mother and the life of the unborn from the moment of conception, the right of spouses to found a family in accordance with their religious convictions and the demands of responsible parenthood, and the natural and primary right and duty of parents in the development of the moral character of their children, to name just a few.

We see how the Culture of Death is running rampant in the cultures of Europe. They have exchanged Christianity for secularism. There is little respect for God, for life, for the Church, for family, for sexuality. Europe is now at serious risk of eventual annihilation because of low birth rates, an aging population, aggressive contraception and legal abortion.

WE DO NOT WANT THIS FOR THE PHILIPPINES!

PROTECT OUR CHILDREN. PROTECT OUR FAMILIES.

PDEA to probe cops on West Craine drugs

By Tara Quinsimbo

THE PHILIPPINE DRUG ENFORCEMENT AGENCY (PDEA) is looking into the possibility that some policemen are protecting the illegal drug trade right outside Cebu City.

The Philippine National Police (PNP) headquarters in Quezon City.

PDEA Information chief Director Carmona said yesterday that the agency has been receiving anonymous tips pointing to policemen in the protection of the major drug network in Barangay West Craine.

Carmona said they were also probing the reported widespread use of illegal drugs in an adjacent two-hour village.

"We're not pointing to anyone but we are conducting a deeper investigation because we have received information that there might be protection from the cops," he said.

Last week, the PDEA Special Enforcement Division headed by drug experts in Barangay

West Craine.

"Most are small time street vendors who are their houses into drug dens," said Carmona.

According to Carmona, some drug-dependent patients were reported to have abused their children after PDEA has launched drug awareness seminars in the area in a bid to curb the drug problem. The agency will also coordinate with the PNP to investigate the problem.

Airport execs seeking ISO certification

By Jerome Daming

AIRPORT DEVELOPMENT THEATRE called on government and private agencies based at the Ninoy Aquino International Airport to work together so that the country's premier gateway could meet internationally accepted standards.

Wilfredo Card, Manila International Airport Authority (MIAA) general manager, said the agency is working on making "predictable" the airport's processes, mainly those pertaining to arrival and departure.

"We're putting into a manual all these processes and standards to be maintained by all airport agencies at any given time," Card explained.

MIAA officials, however, said getting an ISO certification depends on the cooperation and input of all government and private agencies working at the airport.

Extra mile

"[I]f things are full cooperation and involve all employees, government agencies, airlines, conventions and service providers in the terminal as a united front for total quality and customer satisfaction," said Card. He also said that the MIAA is working to make the airport more friendly to passengers.

Services, who also heads MIAA ISO Quality Management System team, indicated airport personnel to practice the "go the extra mile" service branding, referring to the agency's desire to make the airport a more friendly airport to the country.

Card, for his part, said there was a need to "build a culture of excellence among the various work forces operating inside our passenger terminals, corridors of the island and requirements of public services, in a safe and passenger-friendly way."

MIAA has embarked on a series of activities to create an

CUBA

ISO certification, which is awarded by the International Standards Organization in Geneva, Switzerland. The world body, established in 1947, promotes world-wide conformity in technical and commercial standards that are recognized by government and private companies.

Airport auditors

Airport officials on Monday were to allow 25 international quality auditors who are tasked with monitoring how airport agencies apply their self-assessed processes.

MIAA recently signed Six Sigma Level Agreements (SLA) with agencies such as the Bureau of Customs, Bureau of Immigration, National Bureau of Investigation, Department of Tourism and the Philippine Overseas Employment Administration.

The SLA spell out performance measures for each agency for process and quality services for visa passengers. It also officially lists the observance of agency procedures within the airport particularly the passenger facilitation process at NIA Terminal 1.

Human bone in Bataan camp group praying at a makeshift altar bearing a cross, flowers and lighted candles.

As they prayed, Manila began to tremble.

It was in the same area where, the 27-year-old Manila told the press, his brother Reynaldo was shot last January during the capture.

Dr. Francisco Irujo, head of a four-man team from the US Air Force, pointed out the discovery of what they believed to be a human bone as a "breakthrough."

But he said he would no longer be able to identify whose bone it was because it had already been "autoclaved."

4-m long

Manila said the bone was so long that it would not be able to enter the US (deoxyribonucleic acid) samples from it.

The team also included members of the military human rights group Human Rights, the Commission on Human Rights (CHR), and the Senate Committee on Justice.

Their discovery came in the second day of their excavation in the village where Manila said was used as an incinerator by a former detachment of the Army's 24th Infantry Division.

The military commander in southern and central Luzon yesterday said they did not know if the 24th ID had maintained a detachment in Lingay.

The discovery of the fragments of suspected human bone measured 4-m long.

After the war was wiped off the map, Manila told the local media, the body could have been either wrapped in the mud or incinerated in a bamboo structure.

Film on OFWs moves Pinoys in Netherlands

A FILM ABOUT THE PLIGHT OF OVERSEAS Filipino Workers (OFWs) recently opened in the Netherlands, the Department of Foreign Affairs and Consular Service in Amsterdam, said many Filipinos and their family members were emotionally affected by it.

In his report to the DFA, Philippine Ambassador to The Netherlands-Peters Angellon, who presided over the opening of the movie at the Lausette Cinema in Maastricht, said many Filipinos and their family members were emotionally affected by it.

Angellon said the film reminded the families of OFWs left behind as well as the hard-earned money sent by their loved ones abroad.

Angellon said the movie showing in the Netherlands drew more than 150 guests, and was made possible by the Dutch Consulate, Embassy of the Philippines, and the Dutch Consulate in Amsterdam.

NHA turns 33

THE NATIONAL HOUSING AUTHORITY (NHA) marks 33 years of providing affordable and decent shelter to homeless poor Filipinos today, marking a new era in housing development around the country.

The NHA, in a press statement, said the past three years (2007-2009) saw the highest increase in the production of houses with 40,000 units surpassing the previous year average of 23,000 units.

NHA General Manager Federico A. Lazo said the production increase was the result of housing beneficiaries' increase in conformity to the government's housing program, particularly the self-help housing program which comprises the bulk of NHA production since 2005.

The NHA anniversary celebration is also marked with the opening of a photo exhibit on Biodiversity Institute Rehabilitation efforts (BIR) program and livelihood entrepreneurship and product exhibit of NHA beneficiaries on Monday at the NHA main building in Diliman, Quezon City.

Executive Vice President Sol de Guzman, chair of the Housing and Urban Development Coordinating Council, will be the guest of honor during a new opening ceremony sponsored by the United Architects of the Philippines (UAP) QC Chapter in Southville 3 Civic Minded Private Housing Project 1, Marikina.

The Council, together with NHA, officials and other agency members will build a solid mile with residents of Southville 3.

Other anniversary activities are sports exhibition games, entrepreneurship training for NHA personnel, Gender and Development (GAD) on the spot painting contest and slogan writing contest.

The celebration will culminate on Friday with a thanksgiving Mass, the endorsement of equity search and awarding of the winners for sports competition, GAD slogan writing contest and GAD on the spot painting contest.

AGAC REPORT

President Mañalag's report includes from Subcom Barredo, chairman of the APSC Business Advisory Council (BAC) Philippines, the 2006 Report to APSC Leaders following a similar presentation by current general APSC chairman of the APSC in the current APSC chairman, President Ben Garcia of Peru. APSC is the private sector arm of the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC) made up of business leaders from the respective APAC member economies. The other Philippine representatives in APSC are Mark Maguiness, its president and CEO of Maguiness Group of Companies and Arthur T. president of Pura Bank. In its latest report APAC identified two major areas which need policy attention – a change in regulatory focus and accelerated emphasis on infrastructure.

Research head urges: Give nuke a 2nd look

By MacParrillo

GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS ONLY HAD the will, the Philippines could get nuclear and get closer to achieving its goal of energy independence, according to the head of the country's nuclear research agency.

Toward that end, Philippine Nuclear Research Institute (PNRI) Executive Director (ED) Dr. Horacio de la Rosa said the PNRI would be updating its regulations and extending its staff to ensure the government goes ahead and opens the multi-billion dollar nuclear power plant (NPP).

"When [government officials] need to do a [nuclear] political will, after that everything will follow," Dr. de la Rosa told the business in its interview.

"We [engineers] have paid for it (NPP), it will just go to matter if we don't give it a second look," he said.

Last week, Sen. Manuel Villar (Luzon) filed a bill converting the "technical and commercial aspects" of the NPP which was built during the Marcos regime but was never used, to construction and use of the PNRI.

He also urged the PNRI to conduct a study to determine the technical integrity of the NPP, he said.

Dr. de la Rosa said the PNRI would be updating its regulations and extending its staff to ensure the government goes ahead and opens the multi-billion dollar nuclear power plant (NPP).

"We [engineers] have paid for it (NPP), it will just go to matter if we don't give it a second look," he said.

"We know there are three nuclear plants of the same design, built at the same time in Bataan and [they] are operating safely," he said. "There are in South Korea, Brazil and Slovenia, formerly a part of Yugoslavia."

Dr. de la Rosa said some nuclear power plants in the United States have been shut down because of safety concerns, but the PNRI would do a study to determine the technical integrity of the NPP, he said.

"We only have to update the regulations," he said. "We don't have to build a new plant, we have to bring it up to date to the IAEA recommended standards."

GMA also supported its team's explanation that the role of the SACB is to directly be the guideposts and that implementing the intervention would be the responsibility of the concerned LTBs and other government agencies. GMA also acknowledged the efforts of SACB in conducting a series of seminars/workshops on gender only, as a direct means to ensure participation.

In the DRC meeting held last Sept. 30, the President was more concerned with the rights of the people of Burgenland City (the place where an approaching tropical storm was expected to strike) as he had, not on the total number of the people affected as he had in the last election. Expanding political arenas for tribes

By Maurice Mahan
Baton Rouge

TIMES HAVE CHANGED A LOT since the 1970s when tribes, including what was then called "Tribal Filipino lands," was mainly another form of protest against a dictatorship that killed and made enemies of the likes of Rodrigo Duterte, Marikina Dugay.

Under the late President Ferdinand Marcos' iron-fist rule, the Church and other religious organizations had organized "Tribal Filipino lands" every second Sunday of October. Special houses or even small one-day centers were held in some tribal Filipinos. Churches paid tribute to them and awarded them for their actions in protecting and managing their lands and resources.

Tribal Filipinos, for instance, had been linked for hunting, gathering and mining for planting) from the forests only what they needed. Such appropriation of what they needed was made in a way that their leaders and activists considered the exposure given behind large-scale logging, mining and other extractive industries.

In the Cordillera, the indigenous national and state strongly against the "indianization" of tribal communities, which had promised against their industries, along with the Marcos regime's "development projects" such as the proposed series of World Bank-funded dams along the Cebu River in the Cordillera and Benguet.

Marcos' soldiers killed Duterte on April 24, 1980, but not the philosophy on land ownership he articulated and the process against the dams he helped lead. Among other things, he had said nobody could appropriate for himself the land because "it is the commonwealth land."

"How can you own what nature has?" Duterte once said.

Indigenous culture

In every tribal Filipino celebration, participants would not only pay tribute to nature but also to the indigenous culture and values of indigenous nations that had survived colonization. These included a strong sense of community, cooperation, reciprocity (as opposed to justice) and a sense of justice (as opposed to the justice system of the state). These values were embodied in the indigenous culture.

The celebration was, in a way, offering space to important messages that had been about 400 years of colonial rule under the Spanish and more than 50 years of American influence, a "rebuilding" culture in the indigenous.

In March of 1980, the event was limited to tribal leaders, activists, church leaders and other activists. At a time of protest against the regime, it was usually held in churches, school grounds or outdoors or in public parks after a week's work—which revealed the enormous space or arena for indigenous voices.

Changing political arena

The political arena has changed, particularly after a new Constitution was put in place in 1987. After the lobby efforts of tribal Filipino leaders and organizations themselves, the Constitution has finally recognized the rights of "indigenous culture and communities," including the rights to their ancestral lands and domains and to govern themselves according to their customary laws and practices.

These constitutional rights achieved in an enabling law—the Indigenous Peoples Rights Act (IPRA) of 1997. As the United Nations, the Philippines is often cited as a model of more or less of the IPRA.

The act created a separate Commission on National Commission on Indigenous Peoples, which has employed mostly indigenous professionals.

During the Marcos regime, the political arena for indigenous peoples were the streets, and, in some extreme cases, the hills.

Despite what some indigenous peoples' leaders consider in IPRA, the law has helped provide a venue for indigenous groups to engage the government. For example, indigenous communities can use IPRA's free and prior informed consent (FPIC) process to conduct and monitor and finally accepting or rejecting a development project, such as a mine or a dam.

Of course, however, the arena instances in which the FPIC process had been violated. Their common interest that only a few tribes in local government leaders were involved. Some indigenous leaders had alleged that cases of bribery and corruption had occurred.

Still, the FPIC process, if continued with indigenous peoples' own rights, offers an arena where they can get a better idea of their rights and interests.

Global arena

Many of the tribes of indigenous peoples, such as those related to land and resources, still protest. But the political arena through which they could vent their issues has expanded even to the global level.

In the UN, indigenous peoples lobbied and strengthened their own voices and networks and pushed for the creation of an arena through which they could be heard.

One of these arenas is the UN Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues, which has been chaired since 2002 by Victoria Taulava, a Kichwa from Ecuador, M. Taulava. An activist since the First Quarter Storm, Taulava-Carpas had increased herself in the local indigenous peoples' movement before working with the UN.

Other arenas, which include more indigenous issues, include the UN Convention on Biological Diversity and the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change.

One of the goals of the indigenous peoples in the UN Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples, which the UN General Assembly approved on Sept. 13, 2007.

Along with the law, the Declaration, says Taulava-Carpas, can also be invoked by indigenous peoples asserting their rights in their traditional knowledge, culture, land and resources, and their right to determine how best to govern themselves.

But unless it is put to good use, the declaration is just another document. The challenge, says indigenous peoples' advocates and lawyer Raulo Pertierra, is how to apply this by continuously looking at it as it becomes a living document.

Noli says gov't ready for return of jobless OFWs

By Cynthia D. Balana

VICE PRESIDENT NOLI DE CASTRO yesterday assured the public that the government was ready for the homecoming of some 30,000 to 100,000 overseas Filipino workers (OFWs) who could be displaced by the financial turmoil in the United States and other parts of the world.

De Castro, presidential adviser on OFWs, said he is not unaware that "everything is being done to cushion the impact of the possible influx of said OFWs back in the country."

He said that officials of the Department of Labor and Employment and the Technical Education and Skills Development Authority (TESDA) had sent to many out and implemented emergency measures to address the needs of these OFWs.

The meeting, he said, was meant to inform displaced OFWs with alternative sources of livelihood to substitute the jobs that they lost abroad.

De Castro said that while the government was not actively abject of the crisis.

Based on a labor department report, there were already more than 30,000 privately displaced OFWs in the US agricultural and services industries, according to De Castro.

"We cannot but regret our duty to help our modern-day farmers after they lost their jobs abroad," he said. "We have to find them alternative means of livelihood even on temporary basis at least while there is a global economic crisis."

De Castro said that the global is financial crisis, if not properly addressed, might affect jobs abroad.

He said the government was exploring and opening new job opportunities in other major markets such as Australia, Canada, New Zealand and Taiwan.

De Castro said job-matching was in place to which new recruit skills would be compared with the available jobs in the domestic market.

Another measure, he said, was the training of workers through TESDA.

For OFWs with savings, De Castro urged them to take advantage of the Balikbayan program of the 2002 Balikbayan Law for agricultural work in rural areas. Under the law, an OFW can buy 25,000 pesos of land.

Philippines' remittances

In 2005, almost 9 million Filipino workers sent home a total of 14.8 billion US dollars from 202 countries.

"We strongly urge those with savings to start using a credit facility in their source of livelihood while they demanded for Filipino workers in the face of the global economic crunch.

"So the situation remains stable and we do not expect any reduction in the demand for overseas Filipino workers especially in the Middle East," De Castro said.

The Building and Wood Workers' International had warned that the number of jobs in the badly hit construction industry in the United States could be further shrunk, lowering the number of unskilled Filipino workers there.

It said it had questioned some overseas Filipino workers (OFWs) who had flown back in Manila after losing their jobs, adding that they "hardly will have a re-employment."

Since the year, overseas Filipino workers have managed to keep the economy afloat, sending home some $14.8 billion last year, nearly a fifth of the gross domestic product. De Castro said it was important to ensure that the OFWs coming home were laid off as a result of the global economic downturn.

"This is the normal trend after their contracts have been terminated," he said.

Jobs in Canada, Australia, Europe

Country by country, a contracting job market abroad, there are many job-opening Filipino workers in Canada, Australia and European countries, De Castro said.

"We have signed up with four provinces in Canada," he said. "The provinces are relatively higher compared with what the Philippines is enjoying in other countries."

Despite the US crisis, he is looking for available to start negotiations on the possible employment of Filipino workers. De Castro said.

"When the option comes for Filipino workers to go overseas, and overseas a job offer from there, we have ample government mechanisms that are already in place," he said.

Both Canada and Australia are offering jobs for nurses, IT personnel, engineers and hotel workers, among others, De Castro said.

Worst-case scenario

"We are also looking at France, Norway and New Zealand as new markets that would be sending the workers of Filipino," he said.

De Castro said that the DOLE had drawn up a contingency plan for overseas workers in case the United States closes its economy.

"We have assumed the worst-case scenario, and we are prepared for it. We have the mechanism to send our workers and we will provide them with the necessary assistance," he said, but declined to go into specific details.

Hurricane hit

In some parts of the United States, the aftermath of nature's wrath is overshadowing the impact of the global financial crisis on US construction workers.

Some labor groups are fearing the economic slump would hurt the construction business in the United States, which employs many Filipino workers.

But 50-year-old Jerry, a private contractor in Texas, said the construction business is booming now in states recently pummeled by hurricanes "Be"

"The business is booming now because of the damage brought by 'Be'." Many homes and buildings have to be repaired," Jerry said the business by phone.

However, for his Texas and nearby states in early September, shutting down of production in the area as well as damaging roads.

But Jerry acknowledged that a lot of his clients from other states, like New Jersey and California, had already lost their jobs.

He also said that prices of basic materials had gone up.

International labor groups with Filipino members said the other day that the Texas and Illinois was also threatening the jobs of more than eight million Filipino workers.

They said there is the severe stress, like construction workers and nurses, are also in some vulnerability. If they lose jobs, they are likely to stay in undocumented migrants in search of working hours, then to work under them in the Philippines, said the Building and Wood Workers' International.

Overseas Filipino workers are also likely to reduce the amount of their remittances to their families home, the group also said.

Filipinos in the United States are not giving up hope, however. "There are many jobs here that the Americans do not want to do. So we are optimistic we can survive the crisis," Jerry said.

Second or third jobs

Beside losing the looming threat of losing their jobs, Filipino domestic helpers will have to learn to cope with rates in their sector due to the global financial crisis.

Concepcion Bragado-Regalado, chair of Migration International, said Filipino maids would have to cope with the crisis by taking on other jobs, lowering wages or getting going in the underground economy to help support themselves.

"To ensure that they can still survive, some, they will have to find ways to cope. Our maids will have to look for a second or even a third job or get work in the underground economy," Regalado said.

Cuerpo suspension lifted

By El Fin

MALDONADO HAS REVERSED the decision of the local provincial court suspending Rodrigo Moya's body-Cuerpo from office, the court mayor and minister.

In an Oct. 10 order signed by Judge Benito Serrano, the court of the President of the Republic, the court suspended the suspension of Moya's body-Cuerpo and ordered him to resume his duties.

"I feel vindicated. What I've been doing for my town, as Maldonado's body-Cuerpo, is all in good faith," Moya said in a written statement.

"That the fight is not over yet," he added, noting he still had to face other administrative and criminal cases filed by his political opponents, including a criminal case pending at a San Mateo district court, which he described as "persecution."

Cuerpo and began cooperation.

On only on Monday night. Although he said he was ordered the Police to suspend his cooperation, the mayor said he represented himself from that with children from out of office.

The local provincial court and Cuerpo had been at odds over the grounds of lifting charges and other fees paid by the Metropolitan Municipality Development Authority for the use of the 10 hectares land.

In March, the provincial court suspended Cuerpo when he insisted on collecting the lifting fees even though the court found the dispute had not yet been settled in the court of the provincial court.

This prompted Cuerpo and his supporters to launch themselves into the municipal hall for several days to prevent the suspension or, at least, to delay the suspension. A day of his suspension, the provincial court then questioned the suspension at the Court of Appeals, which ordered Maldonado to resolve the provincial court's appeal.

On May 10, 2006, the court, who acted as mayor during Cuerpo's suspension, had filed motions against Cuerpo and his leaders for "breach of peace."

Last Friday, a San Mateo court issued an arrest warrant for Cuerpo and five other officials, for whom they posted a bond of $10,000 each.

On the other hand, 4,000 were sent to their provincial court in San Mateo a day, 3,000, 4,000 are brought to the Rodriguez land. The rest are sent to the court in San Mateo, San Mateo, La Paz and Manzanillo.

Cuerpo said he was justified in ignoring what he called "developmental extortion fees" for the use of the facility.

"We believe that Maldonado is helping to our town. How can they be any advantage to that?" he said the lawyers.

Scores hurt in anti-Kosovo protest rally

FRO-MER Montenegro attack police in downtown Podgorica during the anti-Kosovo rally on Monday.

PODGORICA—MORE THAN 20 people were injured on Monday when Montenegro's police used tear gas against demonstrators protesting the government's decision to recognize Kosovo, a move seen by many as a stab in the back for Serbia.

About 30,000 people from across the country gathered in the capital Podgorica to the early morning. Among leaders, Raji and shouting "Serbia is the heart of Serbia," they demanded the immediate reversal of the decision.

After several speeches, a Montenegro youth soccer team threw stones at police officers. Some drove holes in the parliament, breaking a few windows.

Some 22 people including 10

police were injured according to the sources in Podgorica medical center.

"Police detained 35 individuals for their involvement in the violent protests," a statement from the police said.

It added that the protest opposition parties scheduled to hold on Thursday will be banned.

Montenegro, a former Yugoslav republic of some 600,000 people, voted to join union with Serbia in 2006 and has since enjoyed strong growth, especially from tourism. But many Montenegro consider themselves Serbs and say the country should support Serbia in its opposition to the secession of Kosovo, which declared independence in February.

"We demand the government reverse its decision on the wrong side of Serbia. We also demand a nationwide referendum to be held on the issue," said Vukobrat Ljubovic, a member of the opposition, pro-Serbian Liberal People's Party.

The government will be given until Dec. 15 to meet these demands, he added.

Some demonstrators held the flag of France and Spain—two of the five European Union member countries that have recognized Kosovo.

Montenegro recognized Kosovo last month but pro-Serbian opposition parties said this did not reflect popular feeling, citing opinion polls showing that as many as 80 percent of Montenegrins opposed it. Reuters

Warning against hacking

SEOUL—South Korea's Prime Minister Kim Jong-soon Tuesday warned his cabinet and officials to guard against China and North Korea computer hackers to steal state secrets, officials said. The National Intelligence Service (NIS), Seoul's main spy agency, said it received data that about 120,000 items of government information had been leaked over the past five years. He issued "broadest measures of security among public servants" who routinely use desktop personal computers or the Internet.

Melamine in Indian biscuits?

Vietnamese authorities informed Indonesian authorities in Hanoi that Indonesian-made Biscoy Sweet biscuits were found to be tainted with the chemical. Trade Ministry Director Subagyo was quoted as saying by the Antara news agency, Indonesian's foremost drug monitoring agency has been ordered to probe the issue, Subagyo said. "Based on the results of our own tests the product is not contaminated with melamine," he said and drug agency chief Rusek Rusek Tjandjaja said he was not aware of any. "The products are safe because we import from Europe, Australia and New Zealand," he said.

Computer hack is the culprit

CHINA FILE—A computer hack with the help of a junior air controller and general staff data, leaving the plane flying dangerously in mid-air last week, Australian investigators said on Tuesday. The Australian Transport Safety Bureau (ATSB) said the aircraft had information from the faulty computer triggered a series of alarms and then prompted the Airbus A320X flight control computer to pull the jet into a 100-foot (30-meter) stall. At least 51 passengers and crew were hurt, many suffering broken bones and spinal injuries, when the plane carrying 122 people from Singapore to Perth crashed Sunday following dangerous maneuvers on Oct. 1. Thai troops to remain in disputed area, says minister

Rays rout Red Sox

Phillies climb to 3-1 behind Stairs

WISCONSIN—THE PUPPET PACKED TAMPA BAY BAY WITH FOUR HOME runs over the Green Monster at Fenway Park to beat the Boston Red Sox, 6-5, before Major League Baseball playoffs on Monday after three seasons in which a 3-1 deficit against Cleveland last year to win the AL pennant.

The Rays also hit hard on the homestand. Carl Crawford landed two home runs in his first at-bat on a play at the plate—there was an immediate signal in a matchup between them that have fought in the past.

Mark Lueke, the only Tampa Bay pitcher to lose in the first round series against the 12th-seeded White Sox, held the Red Sox scoreless through six innings before they made a 3-1 in the seventh.

Upon his first at-bat in the third inning, Sox first baseman Jason Varitek hit a home run, his first home run of the season, giving a major boost to the Yankees, who were 2-1 in the seventh.

Suddenly, Sox pitcher Jon Lester, who had allowed seven and six to four previous postseason outings—including last year's World Series clincher against Cal—crack—gave up four earned runs in eight innings in 5-2-3 innings.

Phillies 7, Dodgers 3

In Los Angeles, Shane Bieber and multi-inning pitcher Ryan Lugo led his team to a 7-3 win over the Los Angeles Angels in the first round of the NL playoffs. Bieber pitched six innings, allowing only one run, and Lugo pitched four innings, allowing only one run.

Phillies ace Cole Hamels, who won the series opener, can pitch Philadelphia into its first World Series in 15 years Wednesday in Game 3. He'll be opposed by Texas 2-hour Chad Lippincott.

There was no baseball history here when back from 3-1 deficits to win a best-of-seven postseason series—can't be the NLCS.

With a series at first and one out in the eighth, Phillies lead 6-5. The Sox lead 6-5. The Sox lead 6-5. The Sox lead 6-5.

Chavez Gonzalez (three) tied to throw a 3-1 lead ball past Stairs, and the 40-year-old left-handed batter drove it halfway up the right-field fence to give the Phillies a 6-5 lead.

Thais crush RP booters

THE PHILIPPINES SUFFERED THE MOST lopsided loss in the preliminary round of the 2007 Women's Championship Boxing when it absorbed a 22-0 beating from Thailand at the Thani Luang Stadium in the Thai-Malay States.

The Philippines were helpless as inexperienced stand-in keeper Rachelle De los Reyes, who replaced the suspended Thais, couldn't handle a world that looked like a well-oiled machine.

Mendoza and Rachelle Latape were thrown out of the match for unsportsmanlike play in the 7-Golden on Monday morning night.

The only Thai knockout came in the 10th round of the 1-1, leaving the Philippines in the 2007 Women's Cup second round.

And things weren't for the worse as the Thais sustained their charge without goals in the opening 10 minutes.

By the time another field player, Samantha Nolasco, took over from De los Reyes in the 16th minute, the Thais were already up 3-0.

So a promising start—the Philippines beat Singapore, 3-0, in the opener—ended in disappointment once again in the 2007 Women's Cup. The Thais were a team of no international team.

Thailand will play Vietnam in the semifinals, while Australia faces Germany for the other semifinal slot.

Calaca sale completion seen by end of '08

By Alvin L. Ho

NATIONAL POWER CORP. HAS COMPLETED to make the necessary repairs on the 600 megawatt Calaca coal-fired power plant, to permit the sale of the asset's interest to selling bidder Emerald Energy Corp.

Napoco president Freddie Tampunan said the biggest stumbling block to the completion of the transaction was the present condition of the power station.

"Both Napoco and (power sector assets and liabilities management group) are working to make sure that we meet the conditions that would bring about the sale," he said.

In an interview when he was still vice president at ENEL, Tampunan said the selling bidder had expressed concern that it might not be able to take full advantage of the plant upon takeover since one of the power station's units were not working.

"When we succeeded on the plant, we said it would be sold on an 'as is' basis, where it is. Now we can't take the plant over to the selling bidder with one unit not operating. This is really one of the biggest stumbling blocks," he said in an earlier interview.

Once repairs on the plant are completed, ENEL will be able to run the plant over to the new owner, said Tampunan, paving the way for the completion of at least 40 percent of the $700-million deal.

After an initial "technical review" was completed but this is now being addressed, he said.

"We are preparing for an adjustment in our basic unit, as well as the deferred accounting adjustments. We're doing these because we want to make our adjustments correct. Under the guidelines of the Energy Regulatory Commission, we are supposed to make quarterly filings, and we are making sure that our filings are correct," he said.

"We are working on having approval on four generations over adjustment mechanism and investment currency exchange rate adjustment" said Jua, ENEL. He does not see problems that would affect the deal, as they will still conduct public hearings. It will be a transparent process, and whatever they will decide to issue, we will follow," he added.

Europe's $2.3-T lifeline for banks boosts confidence

By Elizabeth Sanchez-Lacson

PHILIPPINE SHARE PRICES YES-terday closed 7.3 percent up, in line with the global rebound in stock prices following Europe's move to set aside a $2.3 trillion lifeline for ailing banks.

"Everybody is quite bullish," Eddie Ching, president of Citicorp Securities, said.

The Philippine Stock Exchange index rose 154.9 points to 2,273.45.

The 7.3 percent gain yesterday was the highest percentage increase in share prices after Aug. 21, 2007, when the market posted a 9.52 percent growth.

The broader All Shares index also jumped 4.8 percent to 48.1 points to 1,491.54.

Value yesterday's 10.8 billion shares traded, with 1.87 billion shares listed.

Global markets were hit by the announcement from the United States and Europe with their governments' plan to purchase shares of banks, said Jose Victor of HSBC Capital Securities Inc.

"The main thing presented in the banking sector is with the government's announcement to raise in aid support banking shares, the provided some relief and made sense for investors," he said.

"There's optimism that putting money in at least stabilizing and that there will be a more orderly disposal of assets," ATR, San Francisco's president James H. Hsu said.

"I think the general market sentiment is much better now as the various countries in Europe stand behind their banks. However, this is still just a relief only as the markets were somewhat flat work," Citicorp Securities said.

But also said concerns over the impact of a global economic recession would likely continue to dampen investor confidence.

"There's optimism that the event is over the way at least for the stock markets, but the U.S. economy will get less recovery for now," Jua, Jua, Inc. president Joseph Hsu said.

The PSE hit a day-high of 2,293.56 yesterday, posting a 17.81 point gain in mid-October before closing at 2,273.45. With a report from AFP.

OceanaGold seeks more funds for Didipio

By Amy S. Rivas

AUSTRALIAN MINING FIRM OceanaGold Corp. is confident it would be able to secure the $180 million in additional funds needed to continue operations at the Didipio copper-gold mine in Marikina, Negros Occidental.

At the address of the Asia Pacific Mining Conference, OceanaGold VP for communication and mineral affairs Chris E. Goss said the company had signed a letter of intent to help in choosing the best package.

"We are looking at several options between the increased price later different offers. It can be a package or purchase of a minority stake," Goss said.

OceanaGold suspended operations at the mine site on June 24 to preserve cash and additional funding could be obtained. It said the cost of maintaining the Didipio project had increased to $220 million from $125 million due to changes in project scope, foreign exchange movements and inflation, resulting in a funding shortfall of $100 million.

Goss said the firm had short-term perspective positive.

BSP: Storm may be far from over

By Doris C. Domingo

THE WORLD HAS LARGELY SEEN THE worst of the global financial meltdown, but the storm is "far from over," according to the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas, which maintained a cautious optimism that local banks could weather the financial crisis.

In a speech before the Chamber of Trade-Related Industries in Chicago, Governor Espinosa said Philippine banks' exposure to structured products of all kinds was only around 2 percent of their total assets. This suggested that total exposure to such instruments amounted to about P100 billion out of the banking system's P1 trillion in total assets.

The International Monetary Fund, at the closing of the annual meetings with the World Bank in Washington DC, said continued global access was starting to reverse the slide of the financial crisis, but urged financial leaders to "dig deep all instruments" to limit damage to the real economy.

Espinosa cited the IMF's estimate that only half of the $1.4 trillion 6-month credit lines from the crisis that originated in the United States had been provided so far.

"So it seems this crisis may be far from over even as non-derivative and non-structured steps are already being taken to resolve it," he said.

But he added that recently announced plans by the US and European governments to recapitalize ailing institutions had been welcomed by financial markets.

"Some of the worries have started to ease. The Philippines has benefited from improved sentiment in recent days as the market in Asia has improved."

However, he said, the global financial crisis is "not behind us," he said. "The bigger challenge now is to manage the economic fallout that inevitably comes from monetary tightening in the world's major economies. This may lead to a slowdown in our own economy."

Against all these uncertainties, Espinosa said the Philippines' and many countries around the region had to be brave and resilient—a result of the hard lessons learned from the 1997 Asian financial crisis.

Any financial crisis such as the current one, Espinosa said, serves as a reminder of the value of sound regulations and supervision.

"Financial crisis means and will continue to be a sign of the underlying weakness in the global financial markets," he said. "Ultimately, we are not really insulated. But we hope to weather this crisis well enough so that we can see our economy well in a sustained upswing."

With more corn fields, higher yield seen in '08

By Amy R. Nolasco

THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE has expanded areas planted to corn, by another 75,000 hectares in Mindanao, to further boost production of the grain by as much as 270,000 metric tons this year.

Agriculture Assistant Secretary Dennis Amador said that the 2006-2007 planting season for the corn program will spread 720,000 hectares for this "crash program" aimed at increasing production to meet government targets.

"The planting season for this expansion starts across the second and third quarters of 2006," Amador said. "Hence, we can expect to harvest an estimated 270,000 MT in the last two quarters of the year."

In the second half of 2006, the government expects total corn production—which is currently planned to reach 1.4 million hectares of land—will increase to 1.5 million MT.

The sector estimates from the Bureau of Agricultural Statistics showed that corn output during the period may only reach 1.71 million MT, or equivalent to a 4.79-percent drop from last year's volume. The 845 report indicated a 270,000 MT decline from last year's second half output, which had reached 1.94 million MT.

According to Amador, about 100,000 hectares of the expansion area are located in Mindanao, 28,700 hectares in Luzon, and 9,300 hectares in Visayas.

With the corn crash program in place, the government had again resolved to fall just short of its target of 7.2 million MT, or slightly lower than its original target of 7.4 million MT. The DA is confident of meeting this growth target despite the challenges brought by typhoons and the negative impact of high fertilizer prices on farm production.

It means this year's corn output target, the DA said, promotes the use of organic and mineral fertilizers to enable corn farmers to break fertilizer expenses by as much as 40 percent, facilitate the creation of additional corn areas, and boost the construction of 41 additional post-harvest processing and trading centers nationwide.

Earlier, the DA and the Philippines would become self-sufficient in corn by 2010.

THE DRIVEN Volt could give GM a serious jump start.

2 centenarians brace for tougher times ahead

By Charles E. Butler

IT'S INTERESTING TO note that less than a year after the Model T rolled out of Detroit 100 years ago, the Model Y is, at present, the first new model, more precisely, one built by American Henry Ford, the founder of the Ford Motor Co.

While cars were already in existence during Ford's time, they were very far from the mass-produced vehicles of today.

With the Model T, Ford was able to deliver his promise of building "a motor car for the great multitude."

Moving belts

How did Ford do it? By inventing a moving industrial production line that allowed workers to build cars one at a time, instead of one car at a time.

While those laying the blueprint for the modern mass automobile production, Ford also introduced standard interchangeable parts, thus making it cheaper to own a Model T than to own a horse or a carriage.

The 1911, the Model T accounted for 27 percent of the world's automobile production.

The Model T was so successful that by the time Ford stopped making the automobile more than 35 million had been sold, making Ford Motor the leading auto manufacturer in the country at the time.

Another American

Interestingly, Ford was not the only American making headway in the US automobile market.

While Ford gets credit for standardizing assembly-line production of an automobile, General Motors founder William Durant is regarded today for empowering the market, that is, giving them a variety of choices, models, makes as well as prices to choose from.

With their industry momentum, the two industries were able to transform their respective company into among the world's biggest automobile powerhouses.

More importantly Ford and GM turned the United States into a nation of motorists.

But things are not always easy for the two American car giants.

Both suffered heavily from the double-edged sword of gas shortages in the Global financial crisis threatens auto industry

DURING THREE DAYS OF COLLAPSING stocks and crashing stock markets, the resulting fear gripped investors around the world. Last week, the Chamber of Automotive Manufacturers of the Philippines Inc. and the Truck Manufacturers Association announced that car and truck sales would decline 12 percent to 65,131 units in the first nine months of the year.

However, during the 12 percent increase in sales, January-September 2008, no details were given on how many units were sold in September, which were sold in the 10th floor and the 10th floor. Overall, US sales last week plunged to $64.2 billion, down from $74.2 billion in September 2007. It was the lowest in 15 years and analysts predicted that it would be even worse this October. The auto sector's sales for the entire year is $1.4 billion, down from the $1.6 billion last year and the lowest in more than a decade.

The auto slump came in the worst possible time for GM, Ford and Chrysler as they have billions of dollars in cash reserves to fuel new products. GM has $15.5 billion in

THE NEED TO MAINTAIN A three-hectare property in Antipola, coupled with a love for the arts, prompted Edna del Rosario to develop Jardin de Miramar, a venue for outdoor special events.

Formerly known as Villa Loma, the property was a weekend getaway for Del Rosario's family and an oasis to entertain friends. To keep the place alive all year round, she turned it into a destination of sorts.

Jardin de Miramar has several locations for a rehearsal, a movie, garden weddings, debauches and children's parties.

The broad expanse of grounds, dotted with fruit trees towering up to the sky and manicured walkways, is accented with commissioned artwork.

The feeling of being far removed from the madness of the city starts in the winding driveway leading to a ranchito, enclosed with towering mangro trees and paged lawns, and edged with individualistic wall-painted houses in break the monotony of grays.

Bushes bloom, resembling human forms, create large areas all over. Bright trees give its character on the paved lower level grounds. Like many tropical gardens, green is the prevailing color, starting with ribbon and random greens that give the sophisticated touch.

Growing trees—palms, coconuts, bamboo, papaya, mango and others both bearing fruit—is Jardin's other indulgence. They not only give shade, their majestic trunks and spreading branches also provide contrast to the green of the landscape.

Clusters of yellow pinks, lavender, blue, white, yellow, orange, red, and purple in various shades and a grouping of human figures, human figures and a grouping of human figures relieve the monotony of tropical green.

Other touches of color are the large concrete and limestone in little pits, pink flowering vines, hanging bougainvillea vines, philodendrons intermingling with other vines, orange cactuses, yellow vines that enter the trees and ground artists.

As in most Filipino gardens, don't ask the gardener how plants are arranged. Plants are done as if by instinct—their instincts by the cool air and generous or perhaps growing alongside their plants.

In the material, several bushes of the same old the give some and subtle sense. Little groupings of water lilies, money tree, waxy lotus, banana, and other plants growing from the plastic pots provide the area as well.

Each spot has its unique character. In the old-style, rural gardens of children by Michael Geroni, the gardeners the gardeners provide an endless touch. Perhaps, a multi-level garden designed by artist Tony Lando, creates a magical scene with a large pond dotted with elephant's ear plants and a soothing waterfall.

Perhaps the most covered garden is the local park, surrounded by water features with lotus, lilies, and other plants, and a large pond, a kind of glass plant with spirally arranged leaves. The Tressa is a three-level terrace attached to giant branches of a mango tree.

ATMs continue to baffle, exasperate bank clients

IT SEEMS THE SAGA OF MAIN FRAME machines (the automated office machines, that is, of AFM) continues and probably will serve as an convenience study to measure the health bank and climate to let those small/boxes handle transactions.

A teacher from Baker City, after seeing an item in this column several weeks back, recalled an incident she was an eyewitness to. She said the guy ahead of her at the ATM made a withdrawal; then heard him complaining that he got a receipt but no cash.

The man left after waiting for a while. When she approached the machine, before she could insert her card, money was dispensed, obviously what she guy should have

Through the trial to find the man, she found it difficult to do a huge mail to track him down. She decided to leave the money with the guard on duty, hoping he would have some luck finding the missing $100 million.

Whether or not he got his cash the doctor knows but the incident also caused her some concern. She asks, "Will the bank ever have the money that the man did not get but was deposited after he left?"

He posted the question to Mike Brander, head of the Bank of Philippine Islands' Finance Skills Department.

Bernabe says the clerk should have waited a little longer while the machine counts the money. An ATM user will hear the sound of money being counted as the machine pre-

Brewster says a preliminary measure in the operation of ATM's is, if the customer fails to get the cash within the span of about 20 seconds, the machine "takes back" the money and the amount will be credited back to the customer.

Of course, in this case, the numbers also failed to follow the usual routine for a normally distributed variable. The ATM scores usually grouped the customers in just one, two and three, in that order. That is why ATM scores are listed with small steps of paper because many users do not bother to wait for their receipts and the new device just shows them on the screen.

In the case mentioned by the reader, the machine released the card, then the receipt, and the money after the customer got tired of waiting.

Knowing that things don't always happen as planned or programmed, Brevette says "The bank is capitalizing the installation of servers in all-out ATMs" or perhaps any disputes and guide them to recording records and writing complaints.

Background

With L. Williams of Quincy City was also restrained when a machine suffered a glitch. Although she did not get any money because the machine malfunctioned, the amount she was trying to withdraw was deducted from her account.

The reason to thank BNY Gateway is much simpler, when she could only identify as "Dina Melina." For attending to her problems and assuring her that the necessary adjustments would be made to ensure her bank security.

As for member Alex Davis, who had a problem with a NEO machine, I have already asked the your company to be forwarded to NEO. Hopefully, you will hear from the head office. All we have to do is maintain the good
